

I am very much against the proposed rule change to allow corporations greater ownership in a given market. TV choices are at an all-time low, unless you have the money to afford expanded cable. People of modest means deserve to have several choices of news and information. Radio is worse - much worse. I think the rules should be changed to disallow more than two radio stations in any market. The choice of radio formats is so slim that it's really restricting cultural expansion and diversification. Please make it easier for us to find something we like, not harder.
